RE: Accountability for climate change costs in Sechelt

The District of Sechelt is increasingly concerned about the harmful effects of climate change on our community and on other communities around the world. As a coastal community, Sechelt is particularly susceptible to including sea-level rise, increased coastal erosion, prolonged summer drought, and increased winter precipitation. As we move forward with preparing our community and infrastructure for climate change, we will be incurring additional costs as a result of the increased severity of climate change. We acknowledge that individual consumers share some responsibility for the fossil fuel economy, however your company and similar producers also share this responsibility.

Communities will expect you to pay your fair share of the costs associated with preparing for climate change. Municipalities will end up shouldering significant costs attributable to climate change, even if you and other companies pay your fair shares. We will do our part to minimize these costs and impacts and we look forward to your confirmation that you will do your part as well.

Sincerely,

Bruce Milne
Mayor
District of Sechelt
